About me

Passionate Fullstack Developer with experience in JavaScript, HTML5, CSS3, React.js, Node.js and Next.js, complemented by a background in psychology. Excited to contribute to collaborative teams and continue growing in this field. My psychology degree provides me with a unique ability to establish effective client relationships, allowing me to deeply understand their needs and create customized solutions. I am dedicated to creating user - centered applications that not only meet technical requirements but also offer engaging and enjoyable user experiences.

Work Experience

● Fullstack developer jr. @Flexy 🔗

April 2024 to today (10 months)

- Fixed the connection between the server and the database which caused the former to crash upon a given time, bringing stability to the platform.
- Optimized the sitemap generation with a script that takes every post in the platform and turns it into a standard file. This improved the site's SEO performance which now ranks close to 16th position.
- Optimized the database backup process, extracting the information with a script that takes every model and backs it up to a file for easy upload. This improved the site's production deployment by almost 70% since the process was manually handled, having to take down the site altogether for almost two days.
- Connected whatsapp's api to the server, forcing IPv4 as meta's API doesn't support IPv6 requests.
- Optimized image upload to cloudinary, compressing the images and saving them in an appropriate format to be used in publicity campaigns through meta.
- Migrated from SPA to full SSR with Next.js and TypeScript. Using tools that provide typesafety and reliability within a monorepository structure.

● Freelance Frontend Developer
